ADRES Doctoral Conference

22nd - 23rd January 2010
GATE, University of Lyon, France

We are pleased to announce that the 2010 Annual Doctoral Conference of the Association for the Development of Research in Economics and Statistics will take place in Lyon, France, on January 22nd and 23rd.

The Conference aims to stimulate exchanges between PhD students, young doctors, postdoc and experienced researchers to discuss scientific results, start collaboration and get in touch for future academic positions.

The conference will include plenary sessions with three keynote speakers, contributed paper sessions, and panel session on "How to apply for an academic position in France?». The invited speakers are:

- Jacob K. Goeree, California Institute of Technology and University of Zurich
- Franck Heinemann, Berlin Institute of Technology
- Matthew O. Jackson, Stanford University

SUBMISSION OF PAPERS

Both theoretical and applied papers on all topics in economics are encouraged.

Participation at this conference will be subjected to a selection process on criteria such as the quality of submitted papers. The Doctoral Conference is intended primarily for PhD students or young doctors in economics who plan to apply soon for an academic position at a University or in a Research Institute in France or more broadly in Europe.

The official language of the conference is English. Abstracts, paper presentations and all conference materials will be in English. Approximately 75 doctoral students will be selected to present papers at this Doctoral Conference.

The submission deadline is December 11, 2009. Extended abstracts will be considered but preference will be given to completed papers. Decisions will be taken by the scientific committee and the notification of acceptance will be given by December 18, 2009. Proposals for contributed papers should be sent to the organizers through the registration form at the conference website:
